

I think all VRS equipment should be compatible with one another, so we don't have to fumble with two or three different equipments at a time requiring us to purchase different light flashing system for each equipments.